Rholl departed from Springfield on the same train, it is said, but got off at a small town in Illinois, because Hallman had threatened to fix him if he found him on the train when it reached the Missouri side of the Eads Bridge.

Hallman is head pressman at the August Gast Lithographing Company's plant. Twenty-first and Morgan streets. He is the proprietor of the boarding-house at No. 286 Locust street, where he lives. He is about 5 years old, and was a wilower when he married his present wife four years ago, Mrs. Hallman is about 55 years old and het appearance is prepassessing. Before her marriage she was employed at Gast's Garden in North Baden.

Mrs. Hallman said that her husband was at home yesterday afternoon, but that he could not be seen, as he was resting, and had left orders that he did not want to be disturbed. Mrs. Hallman positively refused to discuss her escapade, further than to say that it was past and would be forgotten by those connected with it.

It was stated at Fricke's pharmacy, Eighteenth and Washington avenue, yesterday, that Knoll had never been employed there, but that he was a frequent caller at the store. At Knoll's drug store on Florissant avenue it was stated that he had not returned to the city.
